Legislator of the Year: Speaker Kirk Adams

PHOENIX, Ariz. – Arizona Parents for Education, a grassroots group promoting the interests of Arizona’s public school distance learning programs, today announced that Speaker of the House Kirk Adams was named Legislator of the Year unanimously by its board of directors. Adams was named Legislator of the year for his steadfast support of distance learning in public education.

“Arizona is fortunate to have Speaker Adams fighting for our children,” Arizona Parents for Education President Ann Robinett said. “Kirk has consistently made it his priority to ensure that all of Arizona’s public schools receive the funding they deserve, whether they are traditional brick and mortar schools or online schools, and we can’t thank him enough for his efforts.”

“Speaker Adams willingness to meet with parents and take their classroom experience and turn it into legislative reality shows just how effective he is. We look forward to working with this legislative hero next year and beyond,” concluded Robinett.
